

An ant scurried across the ground, searching for food.

It found a crumb and called its friends. All the ants came to help, carrying the crumb back to their colony.

After eating, they went to sleep in their cozy home.

As the sun rose, they woke up and started their day again.