

Rockets use a special type of fuel called rocket fuel to blast off into space. Rocket fuel is made up of chemicals that burn really fast and create a lot of hot gas, which propels the rocket upwards.