

Ben loved science because it helped him understand how things worked. He wanted to be a scientist when he grew up. One day, he saw a bird fly by and wondered how it could fly. He researched and found out about Bernoulli's principle. Ben was amazed and excited to learn something new!