

Sally saw stars in the sky so she should see some sparkles. She said they shone so brightly that she could spot them from miles away. She smiled as she watched them twinkle and thought of all the stories they could tell. She wished she could reach out and touch them, but knew it was impossible. So instead, Sally just enjoyed their beauty and thanked the stars for their light.