

Vehicles are often designed with a specific purpose in mind. For example, off-road vehicles are built to handle rough terrain, while sports cars are designed for speed and agility. By learning about these different designs, children can gain a better understanding of how vehicles work.