

New Zealand has a proud sporting tradition, with many world-class athletes calling our country home.

By learning about these sporting heroes and their achievements, children can develop a sense of pride in their country and may be inspired to follow in their footsteps.