

Peter was a patient pup who loved to play. He often put his paw in places he shouldn't, causing problems for his parents. One day, Peter's parents pointed out that patience was the poise he needed to prevent predicaments. Peter practiced pausing and pondering before taking part in any activities. Soon enough, Peter became a pro at problem-solving and pleasing his parents with his newfound poise!