

The New Zealand military has a long and proud history, dating back to the early days of European settlement. Our military has served in conflicts all around the world, including in World War I and II, the Korean War, and more recently, in Afghanistan.