

New Zealand's first satellite, called

KiwiSAT, was launched into space in 2013. It was designed and built by a team of New Zealanders and was used for scientific research and education.