Ben loved science because he was curious about how things worked. He asked lots of questions and did experiments to find the answers. By using a microscope, he discovered tiny creatures in a drop of water. But when his experiment didn't work, he didn't give up. He went back and tried again until he found the solution.