Scientists study natural disasters to better understand how they work and how to predict them. By learning about the science behind these events, children can develop an interest in fields like geology and meteorology, and may even be inspired to pursue careers in these fields.