Technology can help us solve problems and make our lives easier. For example, medical technology can help doctors diagnose and treat illnesses, while environmental technology can help us protect the planet we call home.