Technology is all around us, from the smartphones in our pockets to the computers we use at school and home. By learning about how technology works, children can gain a better understanding of the world they live in.